LOCAL NEWS.

The Disreputable Acts of a Society Woman.

Carousing in the Club Theater With Variety Stage Women.

A Very Snide Prize Fight on the East Side of the River.

Schroder's Disappearance—The Arlington House Canard—The Luchette Mystery—Opening of the Hanna College—Progress of the Electric Road.

The midnight news-prowler of the morning press sees many a caustic comment on our alleged "polite society." If he were to tell all he knows, the social foundations would be turned upside down. Last night, for instance, a sharp eye noted a heavily-veiled, richly-dressed woman entering the Club Theater on the arm of a well-known young society man. The observer's curiosity was aroused. Could the woman be Mrs. ——, the young man's special flame? The observer entered the dive in a few minutes and took a front seat. In one of the boxes upstairs sat the young society man and his companion, with two short-skirted, low-necked females from the stage. They were all drinking alleged champagne, chatting in intimate fashion, and enjoying the obscenities of the stage. Probably none but strangers need to be informed of the infamies of the Club. The woman who thus paraded her shame is a society leader in the topmost set, a recent divorcee, a member of one of the foremost families in California, handsome, wealthy, witty, and the object of endless adulation from those who worship the golden calf.

HANNA COLLEGE.

The Fall Opening of a Popular School.

The fall term of the Hanna College for young ladies, situated at the corner of Olive and Fifth streets, opened yesterday morning under the most favorable auspices. About 150 young ladies were present to commence the duties of the term. The opening exercises were as follows: Doxology; reading of Scriptures by Rev. M. Colmey, of Columbus, O.; prayer by Rev. Charles Bransby; singing by the audience; Remarks by Rev. Dr. Weller upon the need of mental training for women. Women in this age, he said, were coming to the front in all the great reforms and benevolent movements of the time. They should fit themselves for this prominent life work. Brilliant talent is not as sure an earnest of success as patient endeavor. He hoped the young ladies would all be possessed of the latter requisite, then their efforts in the schoolroom would be crowned with success.

He was followed by the Rev. Mr. Young, of Boyle Heights, who made some most pertinent remarks upon character-building. Character is not the result of any one great act, but it is built out of the little deeds of everyday life.

At the close of his remarks he was succeeded by the principal, the Rev. D. W. Hanna, in a pleasant address of welcome to his pupils and a few words in regard to the work which he hoped they would aid in accomplishing. He wished to make of the institution a model school, where the mental and moral training should be thorough and complete, not behind the best institutions of the age.

The opening attendance is certainly such as promises well for the future of this popular college of learning.

The managers of the school have found their present quarters too small, and are going to begin the erection of a new building on Eighth and Hope streets. They hope to have it completed within the next 90 days.

PLAIN "ROT."

A Foolish Sensation About an Alleged Robbery.

There was a little episode at the Arlington House, Commercial street, early yesterday morning, the results of which may prove more important than the episode itself. A TIMES man was the first reporter to arrive upon the scene, and gave the facts in a brief. The Herald and Tribune came out yesterday morning with sensational articles based on the unsupported story of a notorious female. Their story is in brief that a Texan "with $600 and a diamond pin" was rooming at the Arlington; that Florence Wilson, an inmate of "Mother" Brown's bagnio, was sent for by the managers of the Arlington to rob the Texan of his alleged wealth and divide with them; that her naturally tender conscience revolted at such a proposition, and she told her intended victim of the plot; that the conspirators heard her betraying them, burst the door open and fired her out.

The story was "rot" on its face, and is apt to make trouble for the newspapers which published it. The Wilson girl has figured disadvantageously in scrapes before. The proprietors and night clerk of the Arlington state that the Texan smuggled the girl into his room without their knowledge; that soon the pair became hilarious, and the night clerk thereby discovered that there was a woman in the room; that he at once ordered her out; and upon her refusal to go, burst open the door and ejected her. Mrs. Peter Haack, who runs the Arlington, is in consultation with attorneys, and will probably sue the Herald and Tribune. The Texan was requested to leave the hotel yesterday. He makes affidavit that no such thing as the woman alleges ever took place.

SEEKING SCHRODER.

A Mysterious Disappearance—Foul Play Feared.

Ten days ago a man named Theodore Schroder, who has lived at the Willows, near Wilmington, disappeared with a Portuguese teamster whose name could not be learned yesterday, and has not been seen since. At first his friends thought nothing of the matter, but they are very badly frightened now, and spent all day yesterday in looking for Schroder's remains, as they are firmly convinced that he has been murdered. The matter was put in the hands of the officers yesterday and a thorough search will be made.

THE ELECTRIC ROAD.

Its Branches Rapidly Reaching On and Out.

A TIMES reporter, anxious to learn what progress was making on the electric road, boarded a car yesterday morning and went over the line.

A branch has been built from Los Angeles street east on Seventh to San Matee street, thence south on Santa Fé avenue to the city limits. This branch is three miles long, and cars will be running over it in a few days. Another branch is in course of construction from East Pico street south along Maple avenue and Los Angeles street to a mile and a half beyond the city limits, being three miles and a half in length. It will be sixty days before this portion of the road will be in operation.

Col. C. H. Howland told the reporter that he expected to have twelve miles of track in use by Christmas. The poles on Pico street are to be moved from the middle of the street to the curb. The company is now using a 35-horse-power engine, but expects to put in one of 200-horse power in about a month.

The cars run at an average rate of seven miles an hour, though in some places they attain a speed of about fourteen miles.

Col. Howland said

ORPHANS' HOME.

Alleged Collectors for It Swindling the Generous Public.

To the friends of the Orphans' Home: The managers of this institution have recently learned that donations have been recently solicited for it by unauthorized persons, which have never reached the home nor been reported to any of its officers. Among others, the generosity of Meyberg Bros. was thus imposed upon, and a large basket of assorted wares, donated to the home, was not only asked for without the knowledge or authority of its managers, but has never been received there.

Therefore we respectfully ask all friends and donors to the Orphans' Home not to give anything to it unless personally requested to do so by one of its managers, or by one of the following gentlemen: Messrs. D. G. Stephens, J. S. Slauson, H. L. Macniel, B. F. Coulter, C. B. Woodhead.

The purchase of an additional lot, making over an acre of ground now owned by the society, the removal and repair of the old buildings and their completion have made large inroads upon our funds. In order to proceed with the erection of the new home for orphans, we must have more money. A thorough and vigorous canvass of the city, country, and, as far as practicable, of the neighboring towns, will be immediately made by properly authorized persons, and we ask every one to be ready to give such sums as they feel able to bestow promptly and cheerfully.

This strictly non-sectarian Orphans' Home is the only one in Southern California that receives into its care boys as well as girls; it is the institution of Southern California, to which it must look for its support. We ask for it large sums, or the many smaller ones which, in the aggregate will make the large sums, and that you will thus make it possible for us to provide for the present and prospective necessities of the helpless children cast upon our care.

THE VALLEY'S GROWN.

A SUN THROUGH PASADENA—A CONTINUAL BOOM.

A Review of the Situation—New Hotels—Parks—An Electric Road from Los Angeles to Millard Canon—John Brown's Sons.

PASADENA, Sept. 5.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] Some time ago a gentleman boarded a train at Los Angeles, having in his hatband a ticket for Pasadena. A young man who occupied the same seat noticed it, and with an eye to business, commenced a conversation something after the following: "Going down to see the Crown of the Valley?" The party of the second part nodded. "Strange?" queried the young man. "Somewhat!" was the reply. "I thought so," said the young man; then added, "Here's my card. We deal in gilt-edged property in Pasadena, and it is our policy to show strangers over our country, whether they buy or not. My carriage will be at the depot, and I should like to show you some bargains." The stranger endeavored to object, but was silenced, overcome as it were, by the enterprise of the young man, and when the train pulled up at the shed that represents the depot, he meekly stepped into the carriage and was forthwith taken around. "Now, here's a house," said the young man, as after an hour or so he drove into a fine place on Orange Grove avenue, "I can sell you cheap; the owner is in the East; you can have it for $15000." "Did you ever see the owner?" asked the stranger. "No," replied the young man. "Well," said the stranger, "take a look at him! I'm the owner, and as I'm here, I guess I'll get out. I won't buy today," and the young man drove off, thankful that no one else knew that he had tried to sell a man his own property.

This little incident illustrates strikingly the growth of Pasadena. The The old settlers come back from the East or North after a two months' trip and find hundreds of strangers in town, engaged in business, and who take them for new-comers. The growth of Pasadena in three years has no parallel in Southern California. Everything has favored it. It has the best location in the San Gabriel Valley proper, and being the starting point for the finest scenery in this section, is the natural center for large suburban hotels. Pasadena has another peculiarity. Between it and Los Angeles there are no jealousies. The interests of both are identical, and in the near future there will be no separation as far as appearances go, the intervening lands being filled with towns and villages like Garvanzo, East Los Angeles, Lincoln Park, so that the entire country between Los Angeles and San Gabriel will be settled up, and to all intents and purposes there will be one vast city. The person who has not visited Pasadena in six months will hardly know it. Fine business blocks have been erected in every direction, and hundreds of elegant vallas have sprung up over the entire county, up to the very base of the mountain. Pasadena may be said to have a continual boom; in other words, a vast amount of real estate changes hands every week, and long-headed real-estate men are making fortunes. The interest now seems to center in that part of the town lying between the center and the Hotel Raymond. Raymond avenue has been put in shape, and by an effective series of improvements, a great rise in values has been effected there and fine blocks and buildings are going up, to assure its permanency. On Raymond avenue the new opera-house is to be built; also, a large hotel. And there is an evident attempt on the part of investors to divert the business of the town in this direction. The so-called depot is here; perhaps the postoffice will follow. If Pasadena was smaller, such moves might create a panic; but as it is, it only enlarges the business part of the place and "booms" the whole town. To meet the North Raymond avenue improvements, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé obligingly proposes to station their union depot at the other end, and around here a new town will spring up, so that the avenue will grow from both ends. That the Santa Fé road will ultimately abandon the road that runs through the center of Pasadena there is little doubt, and there is no good reason why they should not. A road through the geographical center of a town is a nuisance, and much property is hurt by it. The only annoyance Pasadenians will suffer under the new deal is that they will have to ride to Raymond to take the cars for Los Angeles—not as far as from the Los Angeles postoffice to any depot in the city. Much confusion is created in the place by the diversity of names. Pasadena, proper, begins at the arroyo and extends four or five miles down the valley, and from Shorb's Winery to the top of the Sierre Madres in the other direction, and the stations should be called North, East, South and West Pasadena, or the streets at which the trains stop. Instead of this we have Raymond, Olivewood and several more, giving the impression that they are towns, when in reality they are merely parts of Pasadena.

The streets of Pasadena show that the fall "boom" has taken hold, and the improvements that have been proposed are of great magnitude. A new park, and several schemes to beautify the place are talked of. A casino and a club-house, worth $30,000, is under way, while the fine houses being erected by wealthy men can hardly be counted. The tendency to condense business between the Raymond and the present center has affected values on all the lines of travel. Raymond avenue and Broadway, at present being improved by building, will connect the depot and the Raymond Hotel with Altadena and the mountains, but Fair Oaks avenue is destined to be the most important business street. This is due to its position, it being the main avenue between Pasadena and its southern suburb, as well as Los Angeles. The improvements proposed for this street involve the expenditure of large sums. Already the avenue has been provided with a sidewalk from the centre to the Raymond. Fine business blocks are going up, and business is extending towards the Raymond with active strides. Said a Pasadenian: "In a year or so you will find Fair Oaks avenue crowded with fine stores, as it is the only business street in Pasadena that can be followed easily to Los Angeles. It is the natural roadway for any street-car line between here and Los Angeles, and such a scheme is already talked of. Among the fine buildings that will grace Fair Oaks avenue is the Young Men's Christian Association, which is to be one of the most commodious in the State, and plans are being made for several large stone blocks between here and California street. There are in town now," continued the speaker, "several eastern hotel men, and if their plans are matured, there will be one on the property known as Fair Oaks terrace to be found north of Coronado Beach, at San Diego. The idea is to have a building that will be an ornament to the town, and if it is carried out Los Angeles will have to look to her laurels. The talked-of hotel would cost not less than $800,000. One-half the money would be raised in Pasadena, and the rest in the East. Objection is raised to the Raymond, because there is difficulty in climbing up to it. So the new hotel would be on the low ground, but have a series of stories and lofty outlooks, which would give it all the advantages of higher places. The building would inclose a large park, and be made a veritable wonder in the beauty of its tropical plants and their accessories. The location talked of, and which will probably be selected, is somewhere between the Young Men's Christian Association building site and California street. The parties interested in the scheme are also identified with a Fair Oaks avenue street, rail or electric road to Los Angeles. This road, if perfected, would be extended to the mountains, passing through the Altadena tract and to Millard cañon, where, competent engineers state, it can be continued to the falls. Here the water power is sufficient to hoist cars upon an elevator to above the falls, when the trip could be continued up into the mountains. This would open up some of the finest scenery in the San Gabriel Valley, and would be a great attraction to Los Angeles people especially, who now have no way of reaching the mountains without many changes.

"No, the railroad to Wilson's Peak is not abandoned. The matter is being worked up, and will undoubtedly go through. If it didn't actually pay expenses, it would be a paying advertisement, which the whole town could well afford to invest in."

While Fair Oaks and Raymond avenues take the lead as business streets in prospective, Colorado street, which runs east and west, is equally important, and now has the finest buildings—banks and business blocks of the first class. Land here is worth about $600 per front foot, and will probably double within a year. The business of Colorado street, which may in time be made a broad avenue fifteen miles long, reaching to Monrovia, is already encroaching upon the fine residences that have been built upon it, and these will probably have in time to give way to stores.

In the short space of a newspaper article no adequate or just review could be given to the business outlook of the place, and it is only necessary to state that other streets and sections are growing in proportion to their distance from the center. The demand for choice residence property is quite equal to that of business. Orange Grove avenue is the Fifth avenue of the place, and on this magnificent street the largest prices for residence property will be obtained. Here business can never come, and it is given up to large and expensive houses. Many property-owners have bound themselves not to sell less than 100 feet frontage, to prevent the possibility of poor houses being erected. Property here and on adjacent streets ranges from $200 down to $40 per front foot. All the land is improved, planted with oranges, and a man with a 100-foot lot can realize enough from his oranges to pay all taxes, irrigation, etc., and have all the fruit he desires. Horse cars will probably be kept away from the street, and it is to be made the show drive of the place. On it and near by are the fine places of Dr. Channing, Postmaster Masters, Dr. Carr, Mrs. Martin, Frederick Clark, the New York lawyer; Hon. Delas Arnold, Dr. Conger, Mr. Kimball, son-in-law of millionaire Rufus Hatch, of New York; Mr. Ross, Mr. Kernogan, Mr. Bangs, Mr. Nelmes, Mr. Clarence Martin, ex-Mayor Holmes, Mr. Hurlbut, James Campbell and many others, all these persons being wealthy and disposed to make this section of the city as beautiful as possible. Back of Orange Grove, beyond Beauvoir, the place of Mr. Clark, the arroyo has been bridged, and Mr. Scoville, a Chicago millionaire, is to build, it is said, a castle on the hills, while Mrs. Jewett is going to erect an old-fashioned Mexican house on the mesa below. Next to Orange Grove avenue, as a choice residence street, comes Marengo, that—while too crowded for people who leave cities and come here—suits many, and is one of the show streets, while from here south, avenue succeeds avenue, filled with charming homes that in time will make Pasadena one of the most beautiful spots in the country. Among the show places in the vicinity is "Linda Vista," just across the arroyo, where many wealthy Pasadenians are building homes. From it rise lofty hills, reached by trails, from which a magnificent view is to be had of the surrounding country. Below here, near Devil's Gate, a park will probably be laid out, the resort already being of great beauty. Following up the Arroyo Seco, we come to Las Casitas, where one of the finest sanitariums in the country has been started. The site was selected after a survey of the entire range fronting the valley, and lies between the Arroyo Seco and Millard cañons, and is the key to the finest scenery in the vicinity. The climate here is remarkably dry, the deep cañons on either side acting as funnels to draw off the moisture, while fogs here are almost unknown. A visit to Las Casitas is rendered additionally interesting by the fact that on a ridge above it live the sons of John Brown, the hero of Harper's Ferry; while above them still, in a romantic glen, stands the summer home of Mr. Henry Thompson, the son-in-law of John Brown. In all, thirteen members of the Brown family live in the near vicinity. The sons, Owen and Jason, have all the love for the mountains that characterized their father, and it is needless to say that his mantle has fallen upon them in more ways than one. Their ideas about the rights of men are modeled on the Harper's Ferry platform, and it would be difficult to find men and women in any country so conscientious in the small points that go to make up honorable and upright man and womanhood as are the members of this family. Through unavoidable misfortune, the Brown brothers have had to fight a hard pecuniary battle, and some of their friends are in hopes that their mountain home may be secured to them. Mr. John Niles, of Los Angeles, suggested that an appeal be made to the railroad company by the people of Los Angeles and Pasadena to deed some of the mountain land to the Browns. It would be a graceful act and one to be commended, that these men who have devoted their lives for principle should not only live under the shadows, but have a proprietary right in the grand cañons about Brown's Peak.

Pasadena has hotels, and others are being built, yet she will have to turn away hundreds this winter for the simple reason that there is not in this town of 10,000 inhabitants a single house to rent. Houses can be had, but as all are for sale and the tenant is liable to be ousted, no one will take them. This is a great mistake, but as houses sell as easily as they rent it will probably not be corrected, and those who wish to keep house here during the season will either buy a house, go elsewhere, or board. The prosperity of Pasadena is due, in a certain measure, to the fact that she has one of the best-edited dailies (the Star) on the coast. The editor has an eye to the advancement of the town, and demands whatever he thinks it needs, and seems to get it; in short, the people are kept up to the concert pitch, as they should be, as the press is not only a medium for carrying news, but a provider of ideas for people who either do not have them or are too lazy to bring them into play. FACTS ABOUT FULLERTON.

Fullerton is a town site on the San Diego division of the Santa Fé Railroad, twenty-three miles southwest of Los Angeles and three miles north of Anaheim. It is a regular station on that railway and all trains will stop there.

ADVANTAGES.

Fullerton has the most productive country tributary to it of any new town site laid out in Southern California; the country around is noted for its fertile soil and the great abundance of water. The water is derived from the Anaheim ditch, which, as is well known, is the most copious supply in Southern California. Oranges grow to the greatest perfection. The famous Gilman ranch adjoins the townsite of Fullerton. The Gilman place is the "show" walnut grove in the State, visitors being taken there from all parts of the country and shown it as a sample of what can be done in the way of having a perfect walnut grove. Oranges and limes from this section are noted throughout the State as being the finest produced anywhere, and commanding the top market price.

Land in the vicinity of Fullerton is still at a very reasonable figure, as the country is comparatively little known, being at present out of the way of the general lines of travel. With the advent of the Santa Fé Railroad, which is expected within ninety days, property will advance very materially, as it will then first be introduced to many seeking productive land at lower prices than that asked for in and about Pasadena.

OSTRICHES.

The original and largest ostrich farm is only one mile from the town, and is a great source of interest to tourists. One hundred ostriches may be counted.

COMMONWEALTH AVENUE

runs through the center of the town, one hundred feet wide and ten miles long. This will be one of the finest avenues in the Southern country. Lined with umbrageous shade-trees, and the soil is naturally adopted to road-making, packing as hard as asphalt, and never dusty or muddy.

ASPHALTUM.

Immense deposits of oil and asphaltum occur in the neighborhood.

PRICES OF LAND.

Ordinary land without water can be purchased for from $75 to $300 per acre; best land with water at $650 to $700 per acre, and there is but little doubt that all this land will sell readily at $1000 per acre within six months from date.

IMPROVEMENTS IN THE TOWN OF FULLERTON.

A $25,000 hotel is now in course of erection and will be finished within ninety days; two other $10,000 brick buildings are now contracted for and will be finished within the same time. A bank with $100,000 capital is incorporated, and will put up a $15,000 pressed-brick building immediately. Quite a number of houses are now in course of construction and many lots have been sold conditionally upon brick buildings being erected thereon immediately.

A cement sidewalk six feet wide is now being laid upon all the principal streets; water piped in heavy iron pipes and under good pressure through the streets.

PRICES OF LOTS.

Lots range in price from $150 to $700; all streets are graded and there is not an undesirable lot in the entire townsite, as the ground is perfectly level, with a slight fall from the foothills.

SOIL.

The soil is a fine sandy loam which neither gets muddy nor dusty.

CLIMATE.

Fullerton being but eight miles from the ocean, gets the sea breeze much sooner than towns on the other side of the foothill, thus producing a lower temperature in summer, and at the same time the proximity to the ocean causes a more equal and warmer temperature in winter.

Fullerton has the best soil, the best water, the best climate, the largest and most productive territory tributary to it, the best railroad facilities, and there is more cash being expended in it on permanent improvements than on any new town in Southern California.

THE Pasadena Union has appeared as a daily.

THE prices of grapes are rather low, as per a San Francisco dispatch.

THE San Bernardino Courier appears as a six-column quarto, and is looking for the boom just ahead.

THE Yaquis are on a raid on the ditto river, and ten Apaches are raising hair and things in Sonora.

THE Jews of San Diego propose to worship in that city in a brand-new synagogue costing $20,000. The boom has evidently got hold of them.

THE Ventura Free Press, under its new management, is enlarged and improved, and intends to publish Associated Press dispatches.

JACK FROST has put in an appearance in the Northern Citrus Belt, in the region of the high Sierras. Evidently, he was just sampling the oranges up that way.

A TRAVELER announces that there are nearly 1000 synonyms in Arabic for donkey. We would suggest that some of our able contemporaries make a study of Arabic.

THE business of Democratic "reform" goes on swimmingly. It is said that open offers of money have been made to Democratic officials in Brooklyn for places which are subject to civil service examinations.

PASADENA is urged by the Star not to be behind San Diego or any other seaport in the way of making a first-class exhibit at St. Louis. "We had better make no exhibit at all than to suffer by inferior comparison," says the Star.

"DISCRETION is the better part of valor." Such, at least, appears to have been the opinion of Cleveland's discreet partisans in Omaha, for they yesterday removed the President's picture before the Grand Army men had an opportunity to pass by on the other side.

PRIVATE DALZELL, who never dies or ceases to write for the papers, tells an Ohio paper that the way to hold soldiers' reunions without bankrupting a few of the zealous ones, who always have to bear the expense, is to hold county reunions and charge ten cents admission.

GRADUALLY party politics are passing out of municipal elections. The people are interested in having honest and capable men for officials to do the business of the city, and not in supporting party "bummers." Even down in Memphis, where the Democracy is of a stalwart character, the Democrats have nominated a Republican for City Attorney.

THE Chicago Tribune says: "The Memphis Avalanche regrets the necessity that compels it 'to instruct its proof-reader to spell the name of the party in Kentucky and Virginia both hereafter with a small d.' After the next general election the Avalanche will doubtless instruct its proof-reader to use two d's with a two-em dash between them when referring to the party at large."

BILL ARP, that prince of Southern philosophers, has put into a single sentence the explanation of the backwardness of agricultural interests in the South. He says: "The greatest embarrassment over our up-country farming is a disinclination to work." That is a pretty serious drawback, and one that will be likely to militate against Southern success till their peculiar notions about the dignity of labor are thoroughly reformed. A little Jeffersonian simplicity would be a good thing for these Southern gentlemen to acquaint themselves with.

AN old man, Mathias Spangler by name, proudly tells the Ohio State Journal about James A. Garfield and his employment of the young fellow as school-teacher, in 1851, in Muskingum county, Ohio. The admiring veteran said:

"When his term expired all the scholars and parents were sorry to lose the best teacher that ever taught school in Muskingum county. I was one of the directors who employed a future President of the United States—when he was a young man—to teach the public school on Back Run in Harrison township, Muskingum county, O., and I did all in my power to elect him [illegible] was a second George Wash-

Notions on Nomenclature.

The Oakland Evening Tribune says: "In San José they are about building a big 'Hotel Vendome.' Why Hotel Vendome? The name is meaningless. It is disgustingly imitative. Why should California hotel nomenclature forever follow? Let it lead. Is there any reason why the Garden City's big hostlery should not be known as the 'Villa San José' or other distinctive title which would give it prominence? As the Hotel Vendome it will be but one of a multitude. It will divide its reputation with the hotels of a dozen cities, and a hundred 7x9 hamlets. Better call it Hotel Sam Rucker, or the Villa Tom Hanc."

Names drawn from the country are most appropriate, and should by all means be generally adopted in preference to high-sounding and inappropriate foreign titles. Some years ago a lot of people in Santa Barbara became inflamed with an ambition to change the names of the streets, discarding the well-known, appropriate and expressive Spanish nomenclature and adopting in its stead new names, strange to the ear and having no local significance. The City Council considered the petition of the name-changing iconoclasts, and voted upon it. The result was, not one vote for the suggested changes. We always thought the City Council acted wisely and with due regard to local sentiment and the proprieties of the situation. A well-known name is something like a giant tree. It takes a thousand years to grow a monarch of the forest, but any condemned fool can cut it down in a day. A name that it has required years and decades to firmly fix upon some object or place may be knocked out in a day, to give ce to a strange successor, but the new-fangled device cannot be firmly fastened without a struggle. The populace look askant at it.

It would be appropriate for the new grand hotel to be built in Los Angeles—one of the new ones, at least—to be called the "St. Vincent."

Applying the same principle to larger things, we think it would be a mistake to call the new State that will some day be erected on these southern Pacific shores, by any other name than that of SOUTH CALIFORNIA.

"The first note of active preparation for the campaign of 1888 on the Republican side," says the Chicago Tribune, "is heard in the announcement that the movement set on foot by the Republican Club of New York City for a national convention of Republican clubs, has met with such general favor all over the country that it has been determined to hold the convention in the above city shortly after the November election. The secretary of the New York club has already received assurances of an attendance of 1000 delegates, representing 200 clubs. Another interesting feature of the movement is that since it was brouched forty new clubs have sprung up, and there is great interest manifested in Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri and Virginia, in all of which States Republican workers are inquiring the best way to organize and form clubs. It is from these clubs that the Republican ranks will recruit their young and aggressive workers, and it will be greatly to their advantage if some general plan can be formulated at this convention for their organization and government, so that they may be united for effective work. A convention of this kind will also promote zeal and enthusiasm among all the clubs and tend to greatly increase their numbers, besides giving fresh impetus to their activity. There can be no question as to the advantages to be derived from club organizations of this kind when under the proper management, and as they will play an important part in the next election great interest will attach to the forthcoming convention. A thorough and systematic organization of the working forces will add greatly to the chances of success."

The State Fair and Its Outlook.

We take satisfaction from the statement of the Sacramento Record-Union that "advices are such now as to warrant the statement that the forthcoming State Fair will not only exceed all previous expositions of the State Agricultural Society in the number and character of entries of stock and goods, in speed events and social features, but that it will be marked by spectacular and musical excellence of a high order." The Record-Union enumerates: "For instance, the visit of the New York Veteran Firemen and their parade; the concert by the famous Seventh Regiment Band, of New York; the encampment and parades of the Uniformed Rank of the Knights of Pythias, and other striking attractive features. In addition, it is known that there is greater preparation being made by the people throughout the State generally for attendance at the fair than in any former years. The county exhibits will be greater in number, better as expositions of county products and more warmly competitive. We have been at pains to make careful inquiry into the matter, and believe the forecast is justified that the State Fair of 1887 will rise much superior to former exhibitions, and contribute more largely than ever before to advertise the resources of the State and the capacity of our climate and soil." At this juncture, particularly, a successful State fair will prove of much benefit to California.

German Catholic Convention.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—The German Roman Catholic Convention ended today. The chief interest of the day's session centered in a dispatch from General Master Workman Powderly, of the Knights of Labor, protesting against Mitsch's resolutions against the Knights of Labor as unkind and unjust, and based on misrepresentation.

Attempted Murder.

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 7.—A Bee special from Callahan's ranch, Siskiyou county, says: Tom Keator, living a few miles from here, attempted to murder D. H. Foley, a miner, living near the same place, last evening. The cause of the controversy was regarding the right to a certain mining ditch.

The Price of Grapes.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—Since the vintage opened the price of grapes has varied somewhat, but the rate is about fixed as follows: Burger, $12; Zinfandel and other ordinary claret grapes, $15; Riesling, $30. In several instances fine vineyards have been sold for $30 to $35 per ton.

ASTORIA (Or.), Sept. 7.—Charles McGowan, the young man who plunged into the river last week and rescued a little son of William Allen from drowning, was today the recipient of a handsome set of diamond studs and cuff-buttons, the gift of the grateful parents.

Sawmill Burned.

PORTLAND (Or.), Sept. 7.—Last night the sawmill belonging to Savage Bros. & Slater, in Washington county, was destroyed by fire. The boiler and engine escaped without serious damage. The fire originated from a spark dropping from the furnace into the sawdust. The loss will probably reach $10,000. No insurance.

Gov. Bartlett Slowly But Surely Sinking.

Shocking Story of Cold-Blooded Crime in Arizona.

Apache and Yaqui Indians Committing Depredations.

The Liquor-License War in San Mateo County—Doings at the District Fairs—Unwelcome Rains Up North—How California's Commerce is Growing.

By Telegraph to The Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—[By the Associated Press.] At 6 p.m. Gov. Bartlett's symptoms were more favorable and the intervals of consciousness more frequent. He swallowed with difficulty. He is now sleeping. Temperature 99, pulse 104, respiration 30.

Although the bulletins of Gov. Bartlett's physicians assume a more favorable tone hourly, the fact that his pulse has jumped from 102 at 6 p.m. to 120 at 10 p.m., which is double the normal rate, is a matter for comment. This is the highest pulse rate reached during the Governor's illness. This afternoon he failed to recognize two or three friends who were admitted to his room.

THE LATEST BULLETIN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—The latest official bulletin, which was issued at 10 p.m., says:

"The Governor's condition is extremely critical. He has been asleep for the past half hour. The expression of his countenance is natural. The indications, however, are very unfavorable. Pulse 120, temperature 100 1-5, respiration 36."

Later reports are received that the physicians have expressed fears that the Governor may die before morning.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8.—Morning.—From the best that can be learned there is no reason to expect a marked change in the Governor's condition for the next two or three hours at least.

MARAUDING BANDS.

Ten Apaches Committing Depredations—A Yaqui Raid.

TOMBSTONE (Ariz.), Sept. 7.—[By the Associated Press.] After the surrender of Geronimo, and while the Apaches were being taken to Ft. Bowie, about ten of the band escaped in Sulphur Springs Valley and fled back to Sonora. W. B. Freanor, just from Oposura, states that the band, since their return, have been depredating in the neighborhood of Bavispe, Helene, and killing cattle. Four Mexicans have also proved victims. It is impossible for Mexican troops to capture them, for when pursued they flee into the heart of the Sierra Madre. The Mexicans are anxious that Lieut. Gatewood, who induced the surrender of Geronimo, should be sent by the United States to effect a removal of the band from Mexican soil.

YAQUIS ON A RAID.

TUCSON (Ariz.), Sept. 7.—Yachi Indians made a descent recently on ranches near the Yaqui River, killing two men. They have been driven back to their villages by State troops. Particulars are expected tomorrow.

MURDERED BY INDIANS.

SOCORRO (N. M.), Sept. 7.—Private advices from Sierra county are to the effect that Dr. W. K. Perkins has been killed by Indians. There are two Dr. W. K. Perkins, both late residents of Socorro. One is a dentist and the other had been in the drug business here. The latter is known to have been near Georgetown, placer mining. Other reports, considered reliable, are to the effect that the hostiles have been seen near Lakes, where the Kingston crosses the Rio Grande wagon road. The remains of a man were recently found near Salt Lakes, this county. The man had been murdered, but the remains were not identified.

CRIME IN ARIZONA.

A Rancher's Escape from a Gang of Assassins.

FLORENCE (Ariz.), Sept. 7.—[By the Associated Press.] On August 9th, Nicholas White, a rancher, was waylaid near Round Valley, twelve miles east of here, and shot through the neck. The bullet passed around the windpipe, and White recovered. Budd Dozier was recognized by White by the roadside and arrested. He was held in default of $3000 bonds. D. D. Baker alias Ben Decker, disappeared at the time, but was apprehended near Lordsburg, N. M., and brought here. He confesses a conspiracy with Dozier, Bob Dunn and James Brash to kill White and his family. Baker was offered $300 to kill White, but refused. He accepted an offer of $25, a horse and gun, to bear the blame, and fled. He is held in $1000. Bon Dunn is held in $1500, and James Brash in $7500. Brash owns a water ditch and had trouble with White, his neighbor, and suits were pending. The confession charges Brash with originating and aiding the conspiracy. The trial will take place in the middle of October.

EARLY SHOWERS.

Autumn Rains in the North—Much Injury Caused.

STOCKTON, Sept. 7.—[By the Associated Press.] There was a lively shower of rain here this morning, laying the dust and cooling the atmosphere.

REDDING, Sept. 7.—There was a slight shower last night and quite a hard rain this morning.

WILL DO MUCH DAMAGE.

PETALUMA, Sept. 7.—Forty-nine hundredths of an inch of rain fell here up to noon yesterday. Much grain in this section is still unthreshed and much hay not baled; all of which is exposed to the weather and will be more or less injured. Old feed on the ranges will rot and be worthless. Grapes in this county are backward in ripening and have so far ripened very unevenly. It is supposed this crop, too, will be considerably injured by the rain.

AS IT SHOULD BE.

Shipments from the West Exceeding Those from the East.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—[By the Associated Press.] For the first time in the history of the transcontinental roads, the shipments of California products to Eastern points during the past three months have exceeded freight shipments West to the Pacific Coast. In August 2000 freight cars, carrying 40,000,000 pounds of freight, were hauled East by all the transcontinental roads, including the Canadian Pacific. This was an increase of 7,000,000 pounds of freight over the month of July. In June the total traffic was 29,927,000 pounds. Of the August traffic, 500 carloads consisted of green fruit shipped from Sacramento.

The Presidio Riflemen.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—The department teams finished shooting at known distances today. Ed. Stamm, of the California, and G. E. Miller, of the Columbia team, made the same total score for the day's shooting, but Miller, having a better score at 600-yards range, was given the first place. Miller and Stamm's score today was 170.

Serious Runaway Accident.

Prof. Semmola in his paper took the ground that modern tendencies were in the direction of hypothesis and abstract theory and urged a return to the safer and more conservative, though perhaps slower, methods of experimentation and exact ascertainment of facts. Doctors should emancipate themselves from the unproved theories of the present as well as the unfounded dogmas of the past. The Professor was tendered a vote of thanks for his paper. The general session then adjourned for the day.

POWDERLY'S REPLY.

Opposed to Socialists and Pauper Labor from Abroad.

DETROIT, Sept. 6.—[By the Associated Press.] John Devlin, S. Cornel and Windsor, prominent Knights of Labor, wrote General Master Workman Powderly, calling attention to criticisms which have been so freely made upon his policy as the official head of the order and asking certain questions concerning the same.

In reply, Powderly declares he is not a Socialist. He says he owes allegiance to the Knights of Labor only; that he has done a man's part in promoting the order's interests; that he has battled against allowing it to become the tail to any kite. He believed in excluding all foreigners brought to this country under contracts to take the places of American workmen. This country could support 1,000,000,000 human beings, but they must not all come at once.

Several passengers report that this train stood still from Saturday night until Monday noon, and they were without any food during that time, and were compelled to make their own transfers around the washouts in handcars. They say that over three miles of track are washed away.

ATTACHED.

A Big Rubber Concern in Woonsocket, R. I., Closed Up.

PROVIDENCE (R. I.), Sept. 7.—[By the Associated Press.] An attachment for $800,000 was yesterday placed upon the mills and property of the Woonsocket Rubber Company by Thomas John Shipman Green, of New York, and the company's property in New York, Boston and this State is now under the care of the sheriff. On the 6th inst. Green obtained an attachment against the property owned by the company in New York in a suit to recover $222,280, alleged to be due on 200,000 pounds of rubber sold to the concern. The attachment will prevent the shipping of rubber and sending out of made-up goods. The defense of the Woonsocket company is a breach of the contract.

Teemer Wins at Seneca Lake—Detroit Captures Two Games from Chicago—Jay-Eye-See to Trot Again.

By Telegraph to The Times.

DETROIT, Sept. 7.—[By the Associated Press.] In the morning game today the Detroits finally succeeded in giving Clarkson a pounding, while Conway held the Chicagos down to six actual hits. The Chicagos did some remarkable work behind Clarkson, and some that was very bad. The visitors fought desperately to the finish, but the slick work of the Wolverines was too much for them. Detroit, 8; Chicago, 2.

The afternoon game was another slaughter. Eighteen actual hits were recorded against Clarkson. Baldwin in particular distinguishing himself with the bat, scoring a hit every time he came to the plate. Baldwin pitched his first game in several weeks and was very effective, keeping the hits well scattered, with the exception of the first inning. The fielding on both sides was excellent, a marked contrast to that of Monday and this morning. Score: Detroit, 8; Chicago, 4.

BOSTONS BEATEN.

THE GIANTS LOSE A GAME.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—New York was defeated easily by the Washingtons today. The visitors were in great form. O'Day, their pitcher, was very effective. Vitriol Fiend Rozelle and Robber Dan Lewis in Cahoots.

Prisoners in the County Jail complain bitterly of what is known as the Kangaroo Court.

Several stalwart prisoners organize, and when a new prisoner arrives a court is held. The rules of the court prohibit any new prisoner from being the possessor of any article of value. He is therefore robbed of his possessions, and if he has any money it furnishes capital for gambling purposes among the boodlers.

Upstairs in the jail, Messrs. Dan Lewis, the negro minstrel, who robbed John Brown's children, and Rozelle, the vitriol manipulator, are partners, and enjoy the proceeds of their ill-gotten gains from unfortunate individuals who may come within their reach.

Ryan Remanded.

"John Ryan," said Justice Austin yesterday, "you are charged by Officer Beasely with being drunk. What have you to say?"

"I think on the Bible too much," said John.

"What's that!" said his Honor.

"The beginning was the word, and the word was—"

"Take that man back to jail," sternly ordered His Honor. The time elapsing between Ryan's incarceration and his appearance in court had been too short to sober up in, and his case was thus summarily postponed. Ryan left the court-room shedding silent tears.

Massachusetts Prohibitionists Hold Their State Convention and Put Up a Ticket—Synopsis of Their Platform—A Vigorous Plea for the Third Party.

By Telegraph to The Times.

HAMILTON (O.), Sept. 7.—[By the Associated Press.] The opening meeting of the State campaign by the Democratic party was held here this evening. The first speech was made by Hon. Thomas E. Powell, candidate for Governor. Mr. Powell devoted nearly one-third of his time to Gov. Foraker and his administration.

Speaking of what was demanded of the Governor of Ohio, the third State in the Union, he said that Foraker's attack upon President Cleveland in his speech of acceptance was unworthy of one aspiring to such a high office, and for it he had received condemnation at the hands of private citizens and from the public press throughout the country. He claimed also that Gov. Foraker had publicly insulted 400,000 Democratic voters of Ohio by referring to them in his speech as the "rebel brigade," Confederates and dirty Democrats."

Speaking of the rebel flags, he said that Gov. Foraker by his conduct at the soldiers' reunion, and especially at Wheeling, had disgusted the best men of his own party, and the people wanted a Governor who would give less attention to a war ended twenty years ago, and more to the peaceful problems of the present and future. He gave facts upon which he based the claim that Cleveland's administration had done more for the soldiers than any Republican administration, and said that the party which had done so well with national affairs was the party to be trusted with the administration of State affairs.

THE PROHIBITIONISTS.

Ticket Nominated in Massachusetts—The Platform.

WORCESTER (Mass.), Sept. 7.—[By the Associated Press.] The Prohibition Convention was held here today, with 188 cities, represented by 925 delegates. Whirl was nominated for Governor, Dr. John Blackman for Lieutenant-Governor, Amos E. Hall for Secretary of State, J. H. Kilborn for State Treasurer, E. M. Slow for Auditor, and Allen Coffin for Attorney-General.

The platform accuses the liquor-men of bribing legislatures and murdering their opponents; declares against licensing and local option; insists on the necessity of a third party; demands the repeal of all license laws; the submission of a constitutional prohibition amendment to the people, and asks the Legislature to submit the question of municipal suffrage for women.

CATARRH!
THROAT DISEASES, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA,
CONSUMPTION,
Together with diseases of the
EYE, EAR AND HEART,
Successfully treated by
M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M.D.,
M. C. P. S. O.,
No. 275 North Main Street.
A few doors south of the new postoffice, Los Angeles, Cal.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

This has been demonstrated in thousands of cases treated by
DR. WILLIAMS,
With his new system of Medicated Inhalations combined with proper constitutional remedies for the liver, stomach, blood, etc.
Probably no system of practice ever adopted has been so universally successful as that introduced by Dr. Williams for the cure of Catarrh, Throat Diseases, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

CATARRH.

Catarrh is often regarded by the patient as a cold in the head, and he often expresses his astonishment at his remarkable tendency to contract a fresh cold; indeed, he declares that he is scarcely free from one cold before he takes another, and yet he is always exceedingly careful; it is also a matter of surprise to him that the cold always seems to settle in the head and throat.
At times many of the symptoms of Catarrh may seem to abate, and the patient is led to hope that the disease is about to wear off; but another class of symptoms soon appears, and he learns to his horror that instead of recovery from the disease, it is somewhat changed in its character and has extended to the throat. A sense of weariness is sometimes felt in reading, speaking or singing, hoarseness at times occurs, a sensation of dryness is felt in the throat, or it appears that some foreign substance, as, for instance, a hair, obstructed the throat; there becomes a sense of languor and fatigue, the breath lessens upon a little exertion, a short, hacking cough, a peculiar sound in clearing the throat, a feeling as though there was not room enough in the chest to breathe; these and other symptoms occur after the disease has made considerable progress. Then it is a time when consumption is about to begin its dreadful work. Up to this time the progress of the disease may have been slow, and the patient may, in expressing his confident hope that it will "wear off," declare that he has had the catarrh for years, and has not seemed to become much worse, and trusts that he will "by-and-by" recover. But this delusion is the grand error which has peopled our cemeteries with consumptive forms, as all forms of catarrh end finally in consumption.
Inhalations are applicable in all diseases of the respiratory organs, but must be prepared for each individual case as they severally require.
By the employment of proper inhalation in the form of medicated vapor (not steam or spray) we are able to produce immediate and direct action upon the diseased surface in the pharynx and nasal passages, for air will find its way into the most remote and intricate cavities, where it is utterly impossible to make fluid applications. By these means every case can be cured.
Persons desiring treatment by this system of practice can use the remedies at home as well as at our office, and which will cause no inconvenience or hindrance to business whatever.
I have seen so many of these cases cured that I do not consider any case hopeless unless both lungs are seriously involved. Even then the inhalations aid us in dissolving the mucus and in contracting and healing the cavities, which nothing else can do with the same success.
The very best references from those already cured.

CONSULTATION FREE.

Those who desire to consult with me in regard to their cases had better call at the office for consultation and examination, but if impossible to do so can write for a copy of my Medical Treatise, containing a list of questions. Address,

Alhambra.

NOTES OF PROGRESS.

ALHAMBRA, Sept. 7.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] There is a quiet movement all along the line that will eventuate in placing Alhambra in the front ranks during the coming fall and winter campaign.

Arrangements are completed for leasing the new hotel, which assures its being thrown open for guests October 1st. The gentleman who will preside over its destinies has the enviable reputation of having set "too good a table" wherever he has officiated as host heretofore.

The corner-stones of the Goff building and the Jones block have both been laid without ceremony, and the work will be pushed with vigor. Scores of handsome dwellings are going up in every direction. Asphalt and cement walks have been laid by the mile, and the end thereof is not yet. The bank scheme is fast assuming tangible shape. A meeting of its promoters was held Monday evening. Material for the electric road is en route, with every promise that the road will be running before the snow flies. Bonds have been issued and placed by the Alhambra and Pasadena horse railroad, which warrants the completion of the road by the middle of October. An agreement has been made with the Fair Oaks avenue road, in Pasadena, whereby round-trip tickets will be issued for 25 cents from Alhambra to the northern terminus of the Fair Oaks road now, and wherever it may be hereafter, even if extended to the mountain top. The Southern Pacific depot is fast assuming grand proportions. The length of the whole structure will be over 200 feet. The passenger portion will have an additional story for the accommodation of the agent's family. This end of the building will be surmounted by a handsome hip roof, and the platforms protected by an ample wooden awning.

The Presbyterian Society have in contemplation the erection of a handsome church edifice, many generous offers of pecuniary assistance having been made by our wealthy people.

These, with many other schemes that are being agitated in the brains of our enterprising citizens, guarantee a future for Alhambra that is pleasant for her many admirers to contemplate.

YUSUF.

San Bernardino.

FORWARD.

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept 6.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] The jail-breakers have all been caught, and now are in safe keeping.

The San Diego Band were in San Bernardino last week (Wednesday), en route to St. Louis and othern eastern cities. They gave an enjoyable concert in the opera-house, which would have had a larger audience had there been time for notification.

The Messrs. Goodsell and Miss Goodsell have returned from a five months' trip to England, most of the time being spent in Kent, with visits to Paris, London, Canterbury, etc. They had a fine trip and returned in perfect health.

The Stewart Hotel, when finished, will be an ornament to this city. Work on the building is being pushed as rapidly as possible. It will require the painters some six weeks before they get through with the exterior, and the carpenters say they have many weeks' work before them.

Mr. Darby, long known as the manager of the Arrowhead Springs Hotel, has resigned his position, and Mr. Murphy has taken his place.

The street-car company have put on new open cars, which are very neat and more convenient than the ones previously in use.

Saturday was the busiest day ever known for our real-estate men. The boom is nearly upon us. Q.

CHARGED ASSAULT OF LITTLE GIRLS.

A Warrant Out for His Arrest on an Awful Charge — Burglars and Thieves Still Active and Tolerably Successful.

A warrant was yesterday sworn out for the arrest of a man named Lyons. He lives over in Boyle Heights, near a Mrs. Hendel and family.

For several months past, Mrs. Hendel claims that she has been annoyed by the importunities and insults of Lyons. She says he has offered her money, making improper proposals at the time, and insulted her grossly on divers occasions. She also charges that he has exposed his person many times in the presence of little Amelia Hendel, her daughter, until at last he has become a terror to the family.

In a complaint, in which a warrant has been issued, Mrs. Hendel says that on the 26th of August, while little Amelia, a child of 11 years, was playing around her home, Lyons suddenly jumped from a place of concealment, and grabbing the child, hurried her toward his house; that he nearly pulled her arm off, and tore her clothes in his endeavors to force her through a fence, dividing the residence of the Hendels from his own; that he endeavored to outrage the girl, but failing, contented himself by holding the child prisoner and conducting himself vilely, until driven away by the screams of the child.

The mother, driven to desperation, finally sought protection from the law, and a warrant was issued, as stated, for his arrest.

There have been four arrests, within eight days, on charges of indecent exposure.

STILL STEALING.

Further Depredations by the Prevalent Small Burglar.

Thieves and petit larcenists are again at work in this city, and hardly a night passes that one or more bold burglaries are not reported. Night before last thieves entered the basement at No. 316 North Main street by crawling in through the back way. They did not succeed in getting away with much boodle, for the reason that they could not get into the offices above. There were a lot of drawing tools in the basement and a box of books. The instruments were taken, but the rascals did not succeed in getting the books further than the top of the stairs, when they dropped them and made off.

A CAR ROBBED.

Yesterday morning, at the new depot, a sneak thief entered a palace car that was standing on a side track, and succeeded in stealing a lot of jewelry, a suit of clothes and a pistol and gun left in the car by a traveler. The thief made good his escape and has not yet been heard from.

Even a Red-Hot Stove Unsafe.

William Pierson, charged with having on the 27th of August stolen a stove from H. E. Arnett, had his examination before Justice Taney yesterday afternoon, was found guilty and ordered to appear for sentence this morning. Arnett said that the way he came to know Pierson was that he had stopped him on the street and asked him for some money with which to buy something to eat, which he gave him. Pierson then told him that he had no place to sleep, and Arnett allowed him to occupy his room. Several days afterward he missed a stove and accused Pierson of stealing it, which he acknowledged having done and sold to a second-hand dealer. He then told Pierson that if he would return the money to the man he had sold the stove to he would say nothing more about it. Pierson said he would do nothing of the kind, and Arnett had him arrested, with the above result.

GENIUS AT HOME.

THE DOMESTIC LIFE OF THE BRONTES.

A Moody Father, Gifted Daughters and a Dissolute Son — Charlotte Bronte's Marriage and Death Before the Honeymoon Was Over.

[Hattie Tyng Griswold in Chicago Tribune.]

There is a little gray stone parsonage in the North of England, situated in and surrounded on three sides by the churchyard, which is very old and very populous. The rectory of St. Anlist at Haworth was the home of the Bronte family. Here, somewhere between the years 1815 and 1820, were born the three sisters the story of whose short and uneventful lives has had so deep an interest for an admiring world. Again and again does the reading public revert to it, apparently with deepening interest, and I think will continue to do so as long as the marvelous books which had their birth in that little secluded home continue to entrance a wondering world. Well may the story of these lives enthrall us, for in no one of the fascinating books which the Bronte sisters wrote is there a deeper and more tragic interest than in the simple story of those women's lives.

Nor are there depicted in any of those books characters of stronger originality, characters better adapted to all the purposes of absorbing fiction, than those of this most remarkable family.

Could the real record of the lives, brief and outwardly uneventful, of the family at Haworth be given to the world by a writer even approaching in power to Charlotte or Emily Bronte, the book would exceed in vital interest the most intense fiction which has ever been written.

Let us glance for a moment at the dramatic personæ, we should have for this tragic story. First would come the old father, Patrick Bronte, a native of County Down in Ireland. A striking looking man, above the common height, with a noble shaped head and erect carriage. In his youth an unusually handsome man. A man who had made his own way through college, obtained his degree, and taken orders, enterely separated from his own family, and supporting himself from the age of 16.

Of this nature some little idea will be gathered from one or two anecdotes. After he was married and had removed to Haworth, his wife, lying ill in one of the four rooms the ground floor of the house contained, used to listen to the sound of pistols he was firing in quick succession from the back door, and knew that something had gone wrong with him and he was relieving his excitement in this way. Another way in which he relieved his feelings was in cutting into shreds a silk dress which had been given to his wife and which he was too sternly independent to allow her to wear. In short, he was a stern, moody, silent man, full of originality and power, hidden away among those desolate Yorkshire hills in the garb of a clergyman, when he should have been leading a wild charge of cavalry in some fierce battle with infidel or invader. But though a stern and somber man, he was kind to his children in his own way, and they were equally devoted to him throughout their lives. The gentle and refined mother faded out of existence at too early a day to have much influence over the fortunes of the family, and we need not speak at length of her. She died when the eldest of the six children was not more than 7 years old, and thereafter that solitary little group developed in their own wild way upon those desolate moors.

Emily Bronte was, perhaps, the most original of the children in character, and it is thought by many that she was possessed of an even more striking genius then Charlotte. She was of a peculiarly reserved nature, and never during her life made any friend outside of her family. Of a sternly independent disposition, she would receive no favor or consideration at the hands of any but her own kindred, and very little from them. She expended all her affection, apparently, upon the brutes by whom she loved to be surrounded, and who loved her with unbounded ardor.

A great savage bulldog was her greatest friend. Of this dog (Keeper) the following story is told: Keeper was faithful to the depths of his nature so long as he was with friends, but he who struck him with a whip roused the relentless nature of the brute, which flew at his throat forthwith, and held him there till the point of death. Emily had been warned of this by the person who had presented him to her. But he had offended against household regulations again and again, and Emily was not the one to endure this. So she resolved to punish him if he annoyed her again. In the gathering dusk of an autumn evening Tabby, the servant, came to say that the dog had again taken up his quarters on the best bed. Charlotte saw Emily's whitening face and set mouth, but dared not interfere; no one dared when Emily's eyes glowed that way and when her lips seemed compressed into stone. She went up stairs, and they stood in the gloomy passage below full of the dark shadows of the coming night. Downstairs came Emily, dragging behind her the unwilling Keeper, his hind legs set in a heavy attitude of resistance, growling low and savagely. The watchers would fain have spoken, but durst not for fear of taking Emily's attention for an instant from the enraged brute. She let him go, planted in a dark corner at the bottom of the stairs; there was no time to fetch stick or rod for fear of the strangling clutch at her throat; her bare clenched fist struck against his red, fierce eyes before he had time to make his spring, and, in the language of the ring, she "punished" him till his eyes were swelled up, and the half-blind, stupefied beast was led to his accustomed lair, to have his swelled head fomented and cared for by Emily herself. The generous dog owed her no grudge; he loved her dearly ever after; he walked first among the mourners at her funeral; he slept moaning for nights at the door of her empty room, and never rejoiced after her death. Truly there was fierce, hot blood in Emily as well as in her father, but held in check, as was his by many strong, staying qualities of mind and heart.

Annie Bronte was the most gentle and amiable of the family, and calls for but one word at this time.

Branwell, the gifted but erratic son, was overburdened with the genius and the peculiarities of the strange family. He was the most gifted, but the most reckless young man in all that mild country side. Full of Irish wit and humor, and making friends with everybody, he presented the greatest possible contrast to Emily, whose stoicism and reserve were painful and unnatural. He was the pet of the public house, where he was always sent for to entertain any chance guest who stopped in this out-of-the-way place.

Of Charlotte the accounts are all of a more pleasing nature. She is very plain looking, very small and near-sighted, with the tiniest hands and feet ever seen on a grown-up woman. She had long and abundant hair, which was her only claim to beauty, though her eyes lighted up with emotion, and seemed to illuminate her face. She had great constancy and strength of affection, and an almost morbid sense of duty. She was capable of strong passionate feeling, too, though usually very self-contained, and she was painfully shy, owing, doubtless, to her secluded life.

Such was the family who grew up, lived, and suffered within the rectory of St. Antest Haworth in those distant days when such stirring events were going on in the world around them, and in which, almost from infancy, the little group of children took such lively interest.

Few scenes are more familiar in literature than this old gray manse where these gifted sisters lived and died. The sullen swell of mooriand with its purple glory in autumn, rising and stretching away into the distance behind it; the churchyard around it, crowded with graves, the church itself, and the tablet which now bears the name of every member of the Bronte family, are a familiar picture to every reading person. The house itself, with its stone floors, and deep window seats, and bare, blank outward aspect, has become historic. The situation was damp and gloomy and unhealthy, and though Mr. Bronte and the old servant Tabby attained to great age there, the younger and less hardy members of the family all died in youth. Of the six children, Charlotte was the only one who lived beyond 30 years, and she died at 39.

It was a wild, rude people among whom they lived, full of a surly independence and very rough in speech. Even to this day a stranger meets with but scant courtesy among the Yorkshire peasants. Scenes of rude violence were not uncommon in the early days, and it is told of Mr. Bronte that he always carried a loaded pistol, putting it on and taking it off as regularly as his watch, and laying the two articles by his bedside together. The Bronte children were kept from association with any of the children in the little village, and had absolutely no companions and friends in their childhood. They were not even allowed to walk in the direction of the village, but always on the wild, unfrequented moors, which in after life they loved so well and described so eloquently.

Thus thrown in upon themselves, they lived largely in the imagination, and when mere babies wrote stories, and poems and plays, one and all. These they used to read to each other, and it formed their chief diversion. At the very earliest age the three oldest girls were sent away to a school which had been established for clergymen's daughters, at Cowan's Bridge, the cost of which was only £14 a year. This is the one Lowood described in "Jane Eyre," and there is not a detail in all that heart-rending story that is not literally true. Hellen Burns is as exact a picture of Maria Bronte as her gifted sister could make, and to Charlotte's latest day her heart swelled with unavailing indignation at the worrying and the cruelty to which her gentle, patient, dying sister had been subjected by one of the teachers. As Maria was but 11 years old when she died, and Charlotte still younger, the scenes must have been engrossed upon her heart with a pen of fire to have been so vividly reproduced so many years after. Here the health of all the Bronte children was seriously undermined. Haworth was bad enough, and their dwelling in the churchyard, it would seem, about as unhealthy a one as could be found, but at Cowan's Bridge they were literally starved. Dickens has given a shameful immortality to Dotheboy's hall, but the picture is not more vivid than Charlotte Lowood, hers being a literal transcription of fact, while his is simply a type of many schools in the north of England at that time. The hardship of their lives here told fearfully upon their health, and two of the sisters died from the effects, while Charlotte's constitution was permanenely injured.

The first youth of all the sisters was past before any of their famous books were written. The volume of poems by the three sisters was the first book published. Emily's poems are by far the best, and show poetical genius of a high order, though crude and imperfect. Some passages are magnificent, others weak and halting. There is one called "Remembrance," which sets us wondering if the strange and shrinking Emily, whose life was so secluded as to give almost no opportunity for even an acquaintance with those of the opposite sex, had also a romance in her life.

There was much sorrow within the old gray parsonage during all those years after the three sisters had attained to womanhood, beside any sentiment sorrow that either might have felt over broken dreams. There was one grief that was constant, deep, abiding. It was their grief over their only brother. Branwell, or Patrick, as he was always called in the village, with all his versatile talents, could make no headway in life. He fell early into convivial habits, which interfered with any steady application, and after a few years he became thoroughly dissipated and worthless. He left home for a short time to become tutor in a distant family. The wife of his employer fell desperately in love with him and made such shameless advances to him that even her children noticed them, and threatened, when denied any indulgence, to tell the father, who was a bed-ridden invalid. Branwell, it seems, held out a long time (possibly because the woman was double his own age), but became at last as infatuated with her as she was with him. The guilty amour lasted a long time, and his sisters were rejoicing in the length of time he kept his place, and thinking that he was steadying down at last, when Branwell returned in disgrace, and all was anxiety and gloom at the parsonage for several years. He became more and more reckless after the publicity of his disgraceful conduct, and was seldom free from the influence of alcohol or opium. He had been the idol of his family, and he fairly broke their hearts by his conduct. Charlotte gives occasional pictures in her letters of the fearful nights they spent with him in that lonely, out-of-the-way home when he came home fiercely, furiously drunk, and the strength of the whole family was required for their protection against his violence. And a little later on, when he had frequent attacks of delirium tremens, the awful loneliness of winter nights was broken by his frenzied ravings. They had, as I have said, no friends, and the awful monotony of their colorless lives was broken for months at a time only by such horrors as these.

The poor father was crushed to the ground; in the daughters only was there any strength to deal with the outcast. With such a horrible weight as this upon her heart, Charlotte wrote "Jane Eyre." The strength and wild passion of that marvelous book are unmatched in literature. In it she poured out her pent-up life. If its strength amounts almost to coarseness sometimes, shall we wonder, when we see what her life and its surroundings had been, how little of the finer side of life she had ever seen and how much of its brutality? The same may be said of "Wuthering Heights," Emily's powerful, painful story. Their is something weird, uncanny, gruesome about that book, but is it not a natural product of such a nature as Emily's placed in her environment?

These two books were written during the closing of Branwell's life. He died as he had lived—reckless, defiant, unrepentant—though filled with frightful remorse, his pockets even in death stuffed full of letters of his partner in guilt. His death was an infinite relief to the family, who had slept in agonies of terror for months at a time, as Branwell slept in Mr. Bronte's room, and frequently declared at night that both would not come out alive in the morning. At last there was quiet in the house, albeit it was the quiet of death. But very bitter was their grief—not for his death, but for his life—and this sorrow never grew old. Its pang was sharp until the latest day. And Emily did not long survive. She never left the house after Branwell's death, but sunk with alarming rapidity from quick consumption. Yet, to the last she adhered tenaciously to her habits of independence. She would suffer no one to assist her. Any attempt to do so would rouse the old, stern spirit. On Tuesday morning, in December, she rose and dressed herself as usual, making many a pause, but doing everything herself, and even endeavoring to take up her sewing. The servants looked on, and knew what the catching, rattling breath and glazing eye too surely foretold; but she kept on to her work; and Charlotte and Anne, though full of unspeakable dread, had still the faintest spark of hope. The morning drew on to noon. Emily was worse, and could only whisper in gasps. Now, when it was too late, she said to Charlotte: 'If you will send for a doctor I will see him now.' She had resolutely refused to have one during her sickness. About 2 o'clock she died." And Anne Bronte lived but for a few months. Charlotte was now left alone, bereft of all whom she had loved so dearly, and with her old father very dependent upon her. It is a time one shudders to contemplate. Alone with her memories in that old house, hounted by the spirits who had left it, if domicile ever was—for they had clung to it with almost a fierce passion of life—and were torn, as Charlotte said, "panting, resisting, resolute, out of life." The bleak, wild, miserable home was very dear to them. Emily was utterly unable to live anywhere else; the breath of her moors was literally to her the breath of life. Homesickness fairly consumed her when she went away, and she was quickly forced to return. Surely her heaven must be above Haworth to be heaven to her, and gentle Anna was as firmly attached in her more quiet way to her solitary home. After a few months, during which she could do nothing, Charlotte resumed her pen. "Shirley" was finished—it had been begun during Emily's sickness—and was received with great favor by the world. But it brought but little comfort to the wounded heart. Again and again she must have thought with Mrs. Browning:

O, my God!
Thou hast knowledge—only Thou;
How dreary 'tis for women to sit still
On winter nights by solitary fires
And hear the nations praising them afar off.

"Fillette" was received with even greater acclamations than "Shirley," but her sore heart ached on.

***

During all this troublous time there had been preparing for her the romance of her life. The reserved, solitary curate, who, for eight years, had assisted Mr. Bronte with his parish duties, had for a long time loved Charlotte afar off, but made no sign. But the sight of her solitude and her sorrow had given him courage, and at last he declared his affection and received a warm response. Her deep, sly happiness is sweet to look upon. But at first the old father disapproves, and she yields her own happiness to his. Duty, as ever with her, was put before happiness, and Mr. Nicholls, unable to endure her presence and her loss, leaves Haworth. But her evident drooping under the new load is too much for the stern parent, softened by his manifold sorrows, and Mr. Nicholls is recalled and the marriage takes place.

One of her new literary friends, Mrs. Gaskell, visits her just before the marriage, and this is the account she gives of it:

"I don't know that I ever saw a spot more exquisitely clean; the most dainty place for that I ever saw. To be sure, the life is like clock-work. No one comes to the house; nothing disturbs the deep repose; hardly a voice is heard; you catch the clicking of the clock in the kitchen, or the buzzing of a fly all over the house. Miss Bronte sits alone in her parlor, breakfasting with her father in his study at 9 o'clock. She helps with the housework, for one of their servants—Tabby is over 90, and the other only a girl. Then I accompanied her in her walks on the sweeping moors; the heather bloom had been blighted by a thunder-storm, and was all of a livid, brown color, instead of the blaze of purple glory it ought to have been. Oh, those wild, desolate moors, up above the whole world, and the very realms of silence. Home to dinner at 2 o'clock. All the small table arrangements had the same dainty simplicity about them."

That Charlotte was not one of those literary women who do not order well their households is plain to be seen, from all accounts. She had, in fact, a real genius for homemaking, and nothing else would ever have quite satisfied her. After her marriage all went on as usual at the parsonage. The addition of Mr. Nicholls, who had resumed the curacy, made little difference in the home life, except that Charlotte now had a companion and felt less the loss of the loved sisters, an in sickness had some one to lean upon and to comfort her.

Her married life was very happy. She entered into her husband's parish work more than she had done into that of her father, and we have account of one great parish fête wherein she provided supper for five hundred people. But the new happiness was of brief duration. Before a year had elapsed she had followed her beloved ones to an early grave. The promise of the new life which had been given to her keeping was never fulfilled. Her warm heart was never to know the thrill of motherly love. Her exclamation when she found that her husband was weeping over her was: "O, I am not going to die, am I? God will not separate us; we have been so happy." But relentless fate hurried her away; and soon there were two lonely, desolate watchers in the old gray house. The old father had buried his last child. Sad, indeed, must have been his musings as he sat there in his solitary old age and thought of all his bright and beautiful family beneath the old church roof. The world was uttering its acclamations over the works of his gifted daughter, but his ears were deaf to the plaudits—he was listening in the silence for the sound of the voices that were still.

BANKS AND BANKERS.

The Real Bank and the True Banker of the Present Century.

[Philadelphia Public Ledger.]

An intelligent correspondent of this journal, signing himself "Lombardi," writes in strong approval of yesterday's editorial entitled "Railroad 'Operations,'" and desires the Ledger to make a fuller statement concerning the function of legitimate banking and the real and true banker. It is not surprising that he suggests this, because there is so much nowadays in the way of covering and carrying "options," "margins," "corners" and "deals" of various descriptions in modern banking, that people must naturally find it difficult to distinguish what is the legitimate function of the bank and banker. Of course it is quite impossible on a subject which occupies many volumes of books and essays to present any but a very brief exposition, and, so far as this will go, we think it advisable to do what "Lombardi" suggests.

The prime purpose of a bank is to enable the individual or the association of individuals who have more money than they need, to get into ready and convenient communication with those who have less than they need and desire to borrow. It is designed also to be a place for the deposit and safe custody of the moneys of those who require such accommodation. It is also a place where creditors and debtors who reside in localities distant from each other can find conveniences by which collections can be made and debts discharged; also where exchanges can be made of instruments in writing representing commodities, or any form of valuable property can be turned into money or credit, and where money can be turned into credit or credit into money. While these are but some of the real offices or functions of a bank or a banker, they are the main ones, and will illustrate all the rest. It is to be understood always, however, that the only sound foundation for the bank is the capital and the character or credit of the establishment, and by capital is meant actual money or actual property of a valuable kind, and by character or credit is meant the reputation or standing of the banker or the bank for probity acquired through honorable dealing through a course of years.

As a money-leading establishment its function is to supply capital to carry on industrial, trade, mercantile or commercial operations, while the planter, manufacturer, transporter, trader or merchant is waiting for the cash returns for his products or his service; also to furnish governments, municipal, state or federal, with money for their needs at time when they require such aids for their operations, whether of peace or of war; also to enable works of improvements to be erected or constructed, whether private, corporate or public—all these being legitimate operations of industry, trade, manufacture, mining, commerce or valuable production, or for the promotion of useful works in some form.

It is not a legitimate function or office of the bank or banker to take two streaks of old and rusty railroad iron and a piece of paper called "charter" or "franchise," with nothing else at the back of it, and make it the foundation for the issue of any amount of other paper called "securities," which secure nothing. Nor is it a proper transaction or "operation" for the bank or banker to buy an old railway depot, gather in a lot of charters, and make them the base for a railroad system, and again issue enormous sums of new securities on them. The building of a pyramid never was a very useful application of effort, labor or money, even when the pyramid was erected on its broad and solid base, and became a majestic object like that of Cheops on the Nile. How infinitely more wasteful, risky and absurd it is when the pyramid is started on its apex and bears its imposing mass in the air bottom upward. This is precisely the kind of structure that is commonly set up by the "young Napoleons of finance" in these latter days—likely to topple over at any moment and spread disaster around the whole vicinity. You never find the real bank or the true banker engaged in any such folly or such dangerous work as that.

A Cat-egory of Ills.

It was evening. Three of them were killing a cat. One of them held a lantern, another held the cat, and a third jammed a pistol into the cat's ear and fired, shooting the man in the hand who held the cat, and the man who held the lantern was wounded in the arm. The cat left when it saw how matters stood and that ill feeling was being engendered.

THE ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.

The Progressiveness of the South American Nation.

A Washington letter to the Boston Herald says: Hon. Baylis W. Hanna, our Minister to the Argentine Republic, stopped over here today; en route to Baltimore, where he was to take the steamer for Buenos Ayres. It was a busy day for the Minister, as he had matters of much importance to settle with the Administration concerning his mission. In the morning he called upon the President, and when seen in the afternoon he could not say too much in praise of the chief executive. "He looked like a farmer devoted to his business," said the Minister, speaking of the President. "When I saw him he greeted me as though I was an old college crony, and not an official subordinate. He is a man of broad and liberal views—a great man, indeed. It is evident to me, after a brief visit to my home in Indiana, that in every move the President has made he has strengthened his hold upon the affections of the people. He is sure to have a second term if he desires."

Speaking of the nature of his business with the President and the State Department, Mr. Hanna remarked: "You know I was called home by the death of my eldest son; my daughter, too, was near death's door. So you see my visit was not a very pleasant one. After the sorrowful duty of interring the remains of my son, I turned my thoughts to official business.

"I brought home with me an extradition treaty with the Argentine Republic, which has been ratified by that Government. It covers every known crime, and the knowledge of its existence has caused many of the American criminals in the Argentine Republic to look for quarters elsewhere. Winslow, the American embezzler, who is editing the Herald down there, can be had under the terms of the treaty if it is ratified by our Government. He is one of the most prosperous men in South America. I had but little trouble in securing a treaty with the Argentine Government, while Germany and England have long tried to secure one without avail. It is evidence of great friendship of the Republic for this country. One of the objects of my visit to this city was to impress upon the Government officials the wisdom of availing ourselves of this friendship.

"Germany and England control the trade with the Argentine Republic at present, the former being in the line. A hundred steamers make regular trips to Buenos Ayres, but with shame I say not one of them carries the stars and stripes. The Argentine authorities would rather hold close commercial relations with this country than any other. They have made an offer, $125,000 in gold per annum, the contract to run ten years, to any American steamship company that will establish a mail line between New York and Buenos Ayres, making no stops on the Brazil coast. It is my experience that commerce follows the mails. If a mail line is established, trade between our country and Argentine will soon open. Argentine is a pastoral country. It is much ahead of us in the production of cereals. Its principal industries are preparing hides for the market and raising sheep for their wool. They have no coal or wood, and therefore cannot manufacture. We should manufacture for them. I favor the reduction of the tariff on wool. If we monopolized the wool trade of Argentine a great industry in this country would be the result.

"We could manufacture the wool into fabrics and sell them the manufactured article, both deriving benefit from the tranaction. I tell you we ought to keep an eye on that country and not let others derive all the benefit of the rich trade. England has $194,000 invested in railroads there. There is a railroad being built across the Andes from Buenos Ayres to Valparaiso, which will be a great advantage to England, as it will open direct communication with Australia without the hazardous passage of the Straits of Magellan. All we need to do is to step in and take the trade. The people there are more than friendly to us. They have adopted our form of government and condition with but few modifications. Their President is elected for one term of six years. Their congress is organized as ours is. Instead of States they have what they call provinces. Even their school system is copied from that of the Indiana normal school. The President and Secretary Bayard have both assured me that they heartily favor the adopting of a measure which will have the effect of bringing this country into closer commercial relations with Argentine.

"Both realize the importance of securing a fair share of the South American trade, and know it cannot be done without ships. I want mail steamers to go there. Now mail for Argentine is dropped at Rio de Janeiro, and left at the mercy of any vessel which may come along bound for Buenos Ayres. The republics of the new world should all be closely united and have common interests. I think the day is not far distant when Brazil will have a republican form of government. Then we will have an unbroken line of Republics from Paraguay to Canada, as an offset to the monarchical countries of the eastern hemisphere. I return satisfied that the President and Secretary Bayard will accomplish something in the way of opening up communications with Argentine before many months have rolled by."

What is It Good For?

[Detroit Tribune.]

What is the G.A.R. good for, do you ask? Why, my poor, benighted, erring brother, the G.A.R. during the past year disbursed over $253,000 in charity out of its own pocket and over 26,000 worthy people were its beneficiaries. Some of this fund went to relieve the distressed in the Sunny South; was distributed among the Charleston sufferers; yea, even among those who fought on the other side. What is it good for, do you still ask? Why, bless you, it is good for a life as long as the life of its last comrade, and as noble and proud a record as the historian ever wrote.

The Highest Authority.

William Hammond Hall, the State Engineer, who has had years of experience in land and water in California, after a full examination of the Rancho Ex-Mission of San Fernando, reports to the owners of the property, the Porter Land and Water Company, as follows: "You have 10,000 to 11,000 acres, and perhaps more, of really first-rate valley lands for cultivation, with soils not to be surpassed for fertility and desirability by those of any section; lying very favorably for irrigation, and in a neighborhood whose climate is well-adapted to the best class of agricultural, horticultural and vineyard productions usual in this country." Mr. Hall has been employed by the company to devise a complete plan for the irrigation of the tract with the waters flowing from San Fernando, Sycamore and Pacoima creeks, and from the immense cienegas located upon the ranch, and the public may expect the finest water system in California upon this property. A Positive Proof That Cancer Can Be Cured.

Mr. A. R. Shands is a well-known farmer, whose residence is in Spartanburg, S. C. He is a man of means and education. His standing in his community is A 1 for truth and probity. While Mr. Shands refrains from using the word cancer, the facts he gives settles the question of the nature of his disease. He says his physicians never said the sore was a cancer, but that they all warned him that there was great danger that it might turn into a cancer. At any rate none of them could afford Mr. Shands the slightest relief, and finally he was cured by S. S. S., the finest and only absolutely certain blood purifier in the world. Below is Mr. Shands' own letter about his cure. Let any one suffering from a similar ailment write to Mr. Shands and learn from him the exact effects of the wonderful medicine that cured him.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., April 2, 1887.

GENTLEMEN: For twenty years I have had a sore on my left cheek. It had gradually been growing worse. The many physicians whom I had consulted were unable to do me any good. Last fall a year ago I began using S. S. S. At first it inflamed the sore and it became more virulent han ever; so much so, indeed, that my family insisted that I should leave off the medicine. I persisted in using the S. S. S. At the end of two months the sore was entirely healed. Thinking that the evil was out of my constitution, I left off the medicine; but in November, ten months after, a very slight breaking out appeared. I at once began again on S. S. S., and now that is also disappearing. I have every faith in S. S. S. It has done me more good than all the doctors and other medicines I ever took.

Yours truly, A. R. SHANDS.

Dr. Robbins has had several years' experience in the Australian colonies, San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Denver, and five years in Los Angeles; and hundreds of leading citizens can testify to the wonderful effects of electricity in curing cases of chronic diseases when all else had failed, and therefore all persons suffering should try this new remedy before abandoning all hope. After every medical treatment the patients are given the Massage treatment by persons of their own sex. The doctor diagnoses diseases, without explanation from the patient. His office hours are from 9 to 12, 1 to 5 and 7 to 9.

TO THE PUBLIC.

APPRECIATE THEIR EXPENSE.

There was a family on the train between Birmingham and Anniston who had come out of the woods of Mississippi and were on their way to some place in Georgia. It was their first ride on the cars, but while the wife and children were full of natural curiosity, the husband didn't propose to give his ignorance away. When the wife asked what kept the coaches on the track, he looked at her with pity in his eyes and answered:

"Maria; don't you know nothin' 't all? They put tar on 'em to make 'em stick!"

She was satisfied until we switched in on a side track to let a passenger train go by, and then she asked:

"Gordon, what do they do this for?"

"Nother train going by, Maria."

"And do we have to git off the track?"

"Yes; it's the new way. They used to have one train scramble over the other, but it scart the passengers so that they have adopted another plan."

She looked up at the ceiling and then out on the extra track, and replied:

"You orter buy some peanuts of the boy, Gordon, and show the railroad they we appreciate this extra expense that have gone to. They must have feelings as well as us."

FULL-BLOWN ROSE.

When Woman Arrives at Intellectual and Graceful Maturity.

[Philadelphia Press.]

From being passé at 20 to being charming at 30 tells in itself the whole tale of woman's growth for the past century. That peculiar combination of angel and idiot which was the ideal woman was unthinkable except in the teens. Idiocy cannot be angelic after the first score of years. The rosebud is delightful, and everybody loves it, but there is not a woman left who would care to be always eighteen. Up to 35 a woman is not now at all abashed at owning her age. She knows she has but gained in charm; she knows that the man who fought shy of taking her out to dinner during her first season, and who was mute and bored during the whole time that he sat by her side, will seek her out in company now, and will recognize her added experience and maturity by giving her credit for common sense in the talk he begins with her. She knows that where her crudeness used to drive off people worth knowing, she can at her will call them about her now.

Frau von Stien was past 30 when she carried off Goethe captive after he had weathered the dangers of the younger Lillis, Charlottes and the rest. And in New York, or any of the country's great centers today, it is not the younger woman whose position in the only society that is worth the name is happiest or best established. The woman who marries is 25 when she used to be 15. The woman who gathers about her any circle that deserves the name of salon is Mary L. Booth, at 50; Mrs. Martha J. Lamb, with the gray hairs coming; Mrs. Frank Leslie; Jenny June, with a third of a century of active work in the city behind her; or at the younger Miss Grace H. Dodge, on the border line of the thirties; women who are often better looking and always better worth seeing than when they were younger. It is a tribute to the common sense of the day that things should be as they are. The world will always feel and acknowledge a girl's fresh charm. There is nothing else quite like it. But the mature woman, whose face has thought and knowledge in it, and who does as well, is the woman who is crowned queen after all.

J. Blatherskite Foraker, of Ohio, at Wheeling the other day, struck the G. A. R. organization another staggering blow.—[Harrisburg Patriot.

From the squealing and squirming, "patriots" of the Harrisburg stripe seem to have been struck squarely between the eyes. Our mossback contemporary need not worry over the "staggering blow" to the G. A. R. They like it.—[Chicago Inter-Ocean.

The Cheapest Lands in Pasadena.

The reservoir, to cost about $10,000, on the Raymond Improvement Company tract, in front of the Raymond Hotel, is being constructed, and it is having the effect of creating a boom in the lands surrounding that hotel. The Raymond Improvement Company has its first subdivision ready, and they offer the cheapest lots in Pasadena for sale. The lots are selling very fast. Smith & Jacobs, who are the shrewdest speculators in Pasadena, purchased 115 lots in this tract at one time last week. They propose to build houses and mark up the lots to about double the company's present prices, and purchasers may look for a general marking up in a short time. Fair Oaks avenue is to be widened to an 80-foot street, and Smith & Jacobs intend to build a handsome business block. Four elegant cottages already contracted for. An electric road from Los Angeles to the tract is already under headway, and the company has also agreed to give the right of way and a bonus to another road, which will run from the Raymond Hotel, through their land, to Long Beach. Apply to Raymond Improvement Company, room 10, Los Angeles National Bank building, corner First and Spring streets.

Go and See the Colony Lands!

Prospective purchasers of land and town lots in the Coöperative Colony tract, desiring to visit the land, should take the 9:40 a.m. train from Los Angeles to Compton. At Compton they will be met by the colony's carriage, and conveyed to and over the tract, free of charge. Returning to the city, they will ride back to Compton in time for the incoming train.

Call at the colony office before starting, and procure tickets for the carriage ride.

The Wonderful "SARSFIELD" Remedies.

THE SHEPHERDS OF IRELAND were healers of the sick, and they have transmitted, from generation to generation their knowledge of the healing art, and of the curative powers of certain combinations of HERBS, and the name of "SARSFIELD" is famous in the annals of that country. The Mirror Premium Sewing-Machine.

$22.00 for a $75.00 High-Arm Sewing-Machine
AND THE WEEKLY MIRROR.

THE MIRROR
Perfect and Improved High-Arm Sewing-Machine

For $22 this machine and WEEKLY MIRROR, postage paid, for one year.
This machine is the first of its kind ever offered the public at factory prices, and cannot be bought from agents for less than the regular selling price, $75. It is the high-arm pattern, has self-setting needle; cannot be run backward; has automatic cut-off for driving belt, which prevents it from being run backward, thus avoiding all dangers of breaking thread or needles. It is a noiseless, light-running machine, accompanied by an illustrated book of instructions that makes everything so plain and simple that any lady or child can master it. We call it the MIRROR HIGH-ARM SEWING MACHINE, and we warrant it to give full and entire satisfaction in every case, or it may be returned to us within ten days after the subscriber has received the same, if it fails to be as respresented, at our expense, and the money will be refunded.
The above cut represents our HIGH-ARM MIRROR SEWING MACHINE, the very latest improved machine of the high-arm style; a complete embodiment of all the most recent improvements in sewing machine mechanism; a model selected by us after a careful and critical examination and test of the various machines in the market.
Having arranged with the manufacturers to supply us with these machines in large quantities for spot cash at or very near first cost, we can save our subscribers at least $35 on the price of each machine. As this is the first time a sewing machine of this character has been offered to the public at about manufacturer's cost, we feel confident our readers will promptly take advantage of this opportunity to provide themselves with first-class high-arm machines, which obtained in any other way would cost them almost three times the amount.
We could fill several columns expatiating on the merits of this high-arm machine, but to save the reader's patience we will simply say that it contains all the modern improvements, is strong, simple, durable, light-running and noiseless.
OUTFIT—Each machine is supplied with the following outfit: One Hemmer and Feller (one piece), Twelve Needles, Six Bobbins, One Wrench, One Quilting Gauge, One Screw Driver, Oil Can filled with Oil, Cloth Gauge and Thumb-screw and a Book of Directions. The following extra attachments are also furnished free: Ruffler, Tucker, Binder, Set of Wide Hemmers and Shirring Plate.
The regular retail price of this machine is $75. Our price with a year's subscription to the WEEKLY MIRROR is only $22.
Knowing the character of the machine and the high grade of material and workmanship entering into its construction, we have no hesitation in agreeing to return the money at once to any subscriber who is not fully satisfied on examination that our high-arm machine is fully equal to our representations, we paying freight on return of the machine.
CAUTION—Sewing machine agents will tell you, "Beware of Cheap machines." We tell you buy the high-arm machine on trial, and if not satisfactory return it. No agent can sell you its equal for less than $75. Each part of the machine is fitted with such exactness that no trouble can arise if any part is broken, for a new piece can be supplied with an assurance of a perfect fit.
The High-Arm Machine is carefully packed and shipped by freight from Chicago.
Freight charges are to be paid at point of delivery by the subscriber.
Give shipping directions plainly, as well as the postoffice address the paper is to be sent to.
The LOS ANGELES DAILY TIMES—Any person desiring the Daily and this Sewing Machine can have the same by mail for $29.

HOW TO ORDER.

When you remit us the $22 for the Machine and WEEKLY MIRROR one year, write plainly the point the machine is to be shipped to, as well as the postoffice the paper is to be sent to. The machine should be ordered to the nearest railroad point where the railroad company has an agent stationed, and the name of railroad station, the county and State should be stated. When $22 are sent for the WEEKLY MIRROR one year and the machine, the freight charges from the factory are to be paid by the subscriber at the point Machine is delivered to.
We would advise subscribers to order machine sent by freight, as the freight charges are about one-third to one-fourth of express charges; and while the time taken in the carrying of the machine is a little longer, they go just as securely and safely as by express. The machines will be shipped direct from the manufactory (Chicago), all set up ready for use. The money must accompany order. Address,

"SUPERIOR IN SOME RESPECTS TO THE BEST."

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 20, 1886.
Times-Mirror Company: My wife and daughter are well pleased with your Times Mirror Sewing-Machine. They have used several of the best makes of machines and yet say your machine is superior in some respects to those they have used, and in no way inferior. They were at first afraid, as many are, no doubt, that it is too cheap to be first-class, but are now satisfied that it is as good as machines costing three or four times as much. Yours truly,
S. A. MATTISON.

"TIGHTENED THE SCREW AND SHE RUNS ALL RIGHT."

NEWHALL, Cal., Nov. 3, 1886.
Times-Mirror Company: Yours of the 1st inst. received. Will say in reply that soon after I wrote you I discovered the cause of the trouble. The little tension screw in the shuttle had worked loose and was nearly out, and the shuttle thread, in sewing fast, would catch on the screw and break. I tightened the screw and it now works like a charm; no more breaking thread or irregularity of stitch.
Very respectfully, L. A. MYERS.

"ONE OF THE BEST INVESTMENTS THEY EVER MADE."

ORANGE, Cal., Oct. 22, 1886.
Times-Mirror Company: We received our High-Armed Sewing-Machine in good order, and I am very much pleased with it, and consider it one of the best investments we ever made. It is nicely finished, and runs strong and light, doing nice work. Any one needing a good machine I do not think can do better than invest $22 in the machine and MIRROR. Respectfully yours,
MRS. U. L. SHAFFER.

"MORE THAN SATISFIED AND GLADLY RECOMMENDS IT."

ORANGE, Cal., Oct. 22, 1886.
Times-Mirrors Company: I thank you for sending to us for testimonials, as I have sat my new machine in the parlor, without even threading it, as I was very busy and had a good machine ready for work and used to running. So I did not take time to do anything with the new one until I received your letter. Then I brought mine and went to running it to test it. I was more than satisfied, and gladly recommend it to those in need of a machine. I think I would have gained time to have used it long ago. Our little girl wants to write a letter to Mrs. Otis for the children's column. If it is not worthy of a place there, just drop it in the waste-basket please. As ever,
MARTHA M. SHAFFER.

"EQUAL TO ANY $65 MACHINE."

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 19, 1886.
Times-Mirror Company: For the benefit of those who stand in need of a good sewing-machine, I will say, that after using the Premium Machine for about four months, I find it equal to any $65 machine I have seen. Yours, etc.,
MRS. A. W. WARD,
Corner Olive and Ocean, Los Angeles.

MURDERED IN MEXICO.

Further About the Assassination of Leon McL. Baldwin.

[San Francisco Bulletin, Sept. 8th.]

Letters received from the Ventanas mines, in Mexico, convey particulars concerning the dastardly assassination of Leon McLeod Baldwin, a well-known citizen of this city, and reveal an incredible state of affairs even for Mexico. The mines are located about 100 miles from Mazatlan, in the State of Durango, and are very valuable. Recently a band of outlaws appeared in the district, and now have things their own way. They openly state that they intend to kill every foreigner in that part of the country, and have already murdered three Americans. Last March they killed a man named Smith, living on a ranch. A man named Blanche was their next victim, on the 23d of last June, and Mr. Baldwin was their last. The circumstances of his assassination are as follows:

On the 19th of August he started to inspect one of the group of mines of which he was superintendent, known as the Valencinda. He arrived about 10 a.m., and just as he alighted from his mule, two men armed with Winchester rifles, arose from behind some rocks and fired at him, one shot striking him in the right shoulder, passing through it, and breaking the shoulder blade, so that his right arm was rendered useless. He succeeded in drawing his pistol with his left hand, and ran into a tunnel which was near at hand. The assassins were afraid to follow him, but made prisoners of the five unarmed miners who were there. They then threatened the miners that if they did not bring Mr. Baldwin out of the tunnel they would shoot them. The foreman went into the tunnel and told his employer what the bandits had said. Mr. Baldwin directed the foreman to go out and try and find out what they wanted, and if it was money he had only $55 with him, but that his company would pay a reasonable ransom for his release. The blood-thirsty scoundrel finally agreed not to harm the wounded man any more; and said they would fix a sum of money for his ransom. Mr. Baldwin then came out of the tunnel and mounted his mule, but as he was so weak from the effects of his wound that he could not guide the animal, they took a boy from the mine to lead it, threatening the miners that if they followed them they would be shot. Shortly after the departure of the party the miners heard five shorts, and upon going down the road they found Mr. Baldwin lying dead, with a bullet through his brain. The robbers had departed, taking the boy with them, since which time nothing has been heard of him.

This murder occurred within two miles of the town of Ventanas. Although this band of outlaws have been operating around the town for several months, and their haunts are well known to the authorities and soldiery, very little exertion is made to catch them. In fact, the scoundrels go into towns and openly boast of their murderous deeds.

Mr. Baldwin was identified with the mining interests of this coast for the last twelve years. In 1875 he was superintendent of the California Mill Company at Virginia City, and was assistant superintendent of the Justice mine. Previous to his departure for Mexico he was assistant assayer in the United States Mint of this city. He was also at one time the owner of the Los Feliz ranch, near the city of Los Angeles, and has a brother, Gen. John M. Baldwin, living in that city. He leaves a widow, the daughter of the late Mrs. Anna Key Turner, and a young son about 15 years old. Mr. Baldwin was the son of Dr. John M. Baldwin, who was murdered by an Englishman, named Hetherington, in the pioneer days, who was afterward hanged by the Vigilance Committee. He was born in New Orleans, La., and was 45 years old. He was a highly-educated and pure-minded gentleman with many admirable traits of character.

A Prize Letter.

The Washington Republican offered $5 for the best written letter accepting an offer of marriage. Getrude Nelson pocketed the half-eagle by this effusion: "My Dear Donald: Fresh with the breath of the morning came your loving missive. I have turned over every leaf of my heart during the day, and on each page I find the same written, namely, gratitude for the love of a noble man, humility in finding myself its object, and ambition to render myself worthy of that which you offer. I will try. Yours henceforth."

Foreigners in the United States.

[Washington Republican.]

Eight millions out of the 60,000,000 people who inhabit the United States were born in foreign lands, and 1600 foreigners are landed in the country every working day in the year. The vast majority of these are industrious workers, who add to the prosperity and wealth of the country. An insignificant number belong to the dangerous classes, and these should be excluded by a quarantine even more strict than that established against yellow fever.

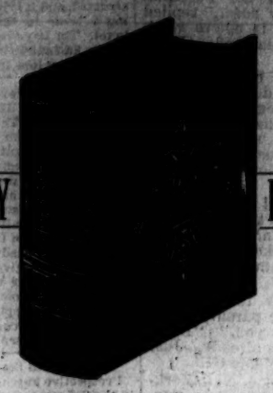
VALUABLE BOOK!



OUR FAMILY PHYSICIAN

GIVEN AWAY!

To all Subscribers of the

WEEKLY MIRROR!

The price of the WEEKLY MIRROR is $2.00 a year. This book sells for $3.00 in the market. We will furnish both for $2.00. If the book is to be sent out of this office, 20 cents must accompany order to pay postage.

THE BEST PREMIUM OFFERED

By any Paper in the United States.

THE MOST PRACTICAL! THE MOST RELIABLE!

Everybody should have a copy of our "FAMILY PHYSICIAN."

This book contains 544 pages; is eight and one-half inches long, six inches wide and two inches thick. It is printed on extra heavy paper and is handsomely bound, with embossed cover and gilt-lettered back.

IT IS DIFFERENT FROM ALL OTHER WORKS OF THE KIND EVER PUBLISHED.

FIRST—It teaches those who have it how to tell what the matter is when some one gets sick. All similar books tell what to do—if you know what the disease is. THIS BOOK TELLS YOU HOW TO RECOGNIZE THE DISEASE, and then what to do for it. No other book published does this.

SECOND—When a person is really attacked by a dangerous disease, it enables you to know the fact, and in such cases its advice is, "Send for a competent physician at once." In all ordinary cases, such as can be cured without a doctor (and most of the ailments in a family are of this kind, if only you could recognize them), it gives full directions for treatment. The point is, that it teaches you the difference between a dangerous and a trifling disease and tells you when it is necessary and when it is not necessary to call a physician. No other book published does this.

THIRD—It gives separately, and for each disease, the methods used by each of the different "schools of medicine," and in all cases the prescriptions are made by the most eminent men in their respective mode of practice. This makes the work specially suited to the needs of every family, no matter what school of medicine they prefer—the Allopathic, Homeopathic, Hydropathic, Eclectic or Herbal. NO OTHER BOOK PUBLISHED DOES THIS.

WE WILL SHOW YOU HOW IT DOES THIS

If you will call and see us.

Please read these indorsements of distinguished physicians which were sent to the publishers of this grand work:

Having examined the advance sheets of the work entitled "Our Family Physician," I can say that I find it accurate in its descriptions of diseases and reliable in its therapeutical department.

N. F. COOKE, M.D.,
Professor of theory and practice, Hahnemann Medical College.

I hereby certify that I have examined a work entitled "Our Family Physician," and find it to be correct in its diagnosis, and, in my opinion, worthy of the confidence of the public.

H. S. HANN, M.D.

I have examined the advance sheets of "Our Family Physician." It gives me pleasure to recommend the work as correct in its mode of treatment of diseases, and it deserves wide circulation.

J. F. COOKE, M.D.,
Professor in Burnett's Medical College, Chicago.

After examining the publication "Our Family Physician," I can fully indorse the opinions expressed of its merits by the above gentlemen.

R. A. GUNN, M.D.,
Professor of the Burnett Medical College.

The book contains a valuable chapter of symptoms, which will aid wonderfully in diagnosing diseases, and the proper remedies are given for Allopathic, Homeopathic, Eclectic, Hydropathic and Herbal.

Every family should have a guide to health to assist the family doctor. not intended to take the place of the doctor in every instance, but to help you do everything possible in his absence.

—:TO OUR OLD SUBSCRIBERS:—

It is customary with newspapers to give premiums to new subscribers only; but the publishers of the MIRROR mean to reverse this old rule; they intend to do as well, at least, by their old subscribers—those who have stood by the paper in years past, and paid their money for it "right straight along." We propose to show our appreciation of these friends in a substantial manner; and as the premium to be offered is expensive, and as our express object in offering it is to increase our list of subscribers, we will require every old subscriber who may renew his subscription, in order to receive the valuable premium, to bring in AT LEAST ONE NEW SUBSCRIBER, to whom the premium will be given, as well as to the old subscriber.
